1. This application is in condition for allowance except for the following formal matters:

A substitute specification excluding claims is required pursuant to 37 CFR 1.125(a) because the "APPENDIX I" contains drawings and different lay out. See 37 CFR 1.58(a) below:

§ 1.58 Chemical and mathematical formulae and tables.

(a) The specification, including the claims, may contain chemical and mathematical formulas, but shall not contain drawings or flow diagrams. The description portion of the specification may contain tables; claims may contain tables either if necessary to conform to 35 U.S.C. 112 or if otherwise found to be desirable.

A substitute specification filed under 37 CFR 1.125(a) must only contain subject matter from the original specification and any previously entered amendment under 37 CFR 1.121. If the substitute specification contains additional subject matter not of record, the substitute specification must be filed under 37 CFR 1.125(b) and must be accompanied by: 1) a statement that the substitute specification contains no new matter; and 2) a marked-up copy showing the amendments to be made via the substitute specification relative to the specification at the time the substitute specification is filed.

2. The abstract of the disclosure is objected to because legal phraseology is used in this paragraph (i.e., "comprising"). Correction is required. See MPEP § 608.01(b).

3. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 12-22 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, because the specification, while being enabling for "converting a pseudo-random code generator specification into an equivalent representation", does not reasonably provide enablement for "the equivalent representation is such that no taps are within n spaces from the input". The specification does not enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the invention commensurate in scope with these claims.

The examiner notes that applicants do show the pseudo-random code generator has "taps used to calculate an output include at least one tap within n spaces from the input", e.g., see two pair decomposed "LFSRs" of Fig. 2. The Fig. [2] merely shows the "gold code generator" (60) is separated in two portions with some modification but they still have the "taps are within n spaces from the input". Clarification is requested.

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 32-35 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over either Shimada '385 or Shimada '099.

As per independent claim 32, both Shimada disclose (e.g., see Shimada '385 Figs. 5 & 8-9 or Shimada '099 Figs. 2 & 4) pseudo-random number generators having n [parallel] linear feedback shift registers (LFSRs) to simultaneously output the desired outputs. It is noted that Shimada '385 and Shimada '099 do not specifically disclose the claimed "gold code" generator; however, Shimada '385 and Shimada '099 are pseudo-random number generators. Therefore, it would have been obvious to a person having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to design the claimed invention according to Shimada's teachings because the references are pseudo-random number generators having n [parallel] linear feedback shift registers as claimed.

As per dependent claim 33-35, the detail features are well known component(s) in the art.

5. Claims 36-38 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

6. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Cited references are art of interest.
